

Hello Magda!

I finally remembered to write to you. Everything is really fine here. The city is amazing, I love it! However, when it is very cold I just want to die. Ha ha!

I hope that you are all fine over there, I miss the class. I also went to a free class here, but it wasn't so much fun. Everybody here told me that my English is not bad. My manager, too. She told me on my first day: "...only one week here and Spanish? Really? Ha ha! It was good for my self-esteem, so thanks because your lessons helped me. I work a few days per month in a temp agency as a waiter. It's easy, but here the people have a really strange accent. It's more difficult than I thought. But well, step by step.

Everywhere you go is full of Spanish people here, but I try to speak everyday to people from Italy, Australia, New Zealand or Poland. My speaking is really improving, but improving the listening is very difficult for me. I study every morning some grammar, I read a book about hijackers and then listen to something in the original version. In the afternoons, I usually go out to have something or visit some new place. There are really beautiful places here. It's the most beautiful city that I've ever seen. I hope you'll excuse my mistakes. Greetings to you all.

See you soon!
